Fabien Ducher is a sixth- generation of breeder of roses . Fabien’s ancestor, Claude Ducher, opened his nursery in Lyon, France in 1845. Some of his early creations, Mademoiselle Cécile Brunner, Rêve d’or, Bengale Ducher, are known all around the world.

Fabien and his wife Florence have resurrected numerous antique roses of their family’s heritage and continue to research and resurrect rare antique roses of some of the greatest 19th century French rose breeders, returning to commerce what might have remained obscure.

Fabien has focused his passion and skill to hybridizing new versions of old roses that retain the unique character of their Bourbon, Hybrid Perpetual, and hybrid tea parents. Fabien’s unique touch preserves and delivers the fragrance that defines the quality of the antique strains while delivering modern performance demanded by today’s gardens.

Fabien travels around the world speaking at conferences about roses and their history bringing market awareness to these unique antique roses. This year promises to be one of the best as Fabien has put together a collection possessing exquisite fragrance and pure beauty.
